MULTIMEDIA PRESENTATION

OCTOBER BOOK SHARE

For this Book Share you will create a Multimedia Presentation that summarizes the plot and theme of the book you read. Carefully read and follow the requirements listed below.

DUE DATE: Thursday, October 30, 2014

1. The book you choose to share must be an AR book you have read on your own during the month of October and have not already shared in a Book Share or Book Commercial. You may not do a book share on a book read for another class assignment such as Book Clubs.
2. There is no required genre for this Book Share.
3. You must take the AR test for the book before sharing the book on the due date. Your comprehension score on the AR test will count for part of your score for this project.
4. Create a linear multimedia presentation that provides a concise, complete summary of your book and that demonstrates your understanding of both the plot and theme of the book.
   - Multimedia presentations are digital (computer) presentations that include a combination of text, audio, clip art, photographs, animation, or video. The type of presentation software you use is up to you – PowerPoint, Prezi, PowToons, Paper Slides, and Puppet Pals are examples of appropriate options. Several mini-lessons will be taught in class to help you become familiar with some of these programs and how to use them. You can choose to use any of the programs described in class or other similar software.
   - Begin with a creative a title page. Include a picture of the book cover onto your title page. You can safely find a picture of the cover of your book on Barnes & Noble's website. Even though many books include this on the cover, be sure to type the title, author, and genre of your book on the title page. You should also put your name on the title page.
   - Use the remainder of your presentation to summarize the plot and theme of the book you read – summaries can be typed in the presentation and/or shared through recorded voice. Your summary of the plot should cover the entire book (not just the beginning or a selected part), but you should be careful to not give away the resolution to the problem. Mini-lessons on summarizing plot and identifying themes will be taught in class throughout the month of October.
   - Make sure your presentation is truly a "multimedia" presentation. In other words, your presentation needs to include more than just words. Make the presentation creative and fun to watch.
5. Complete your presentation and email it to the teacher (or bring it to class on a thumb drive) by the due date. Presentations will be shared the following day in class.
